

Promoting Safety in Bangladesh

Walmart is committed to safety in our supply chain worldwide. We also recognize the need for heightened attention to the unique safety problem in Bangladesh. We expect firm commitments from our suppliers to meet strict safety standards, to be open to rigorous audits, and to put the welfare of employees first.

Our Standards for Suppliers are Walmart's fundamental expectations of our suppliers and their factories on the treatment of workers and impact on the environment. The Standards also provide the framework for audits that measure how well suppliers are meeting our expectations. We ask suppliers to familiarize themselves with the Standards.

In addition to the regular audits that Walmart conducts under its Ethical Sourcing program, the company recently announced that it will conduct more in-depth inspections in Bangladesh relating to electrical, fire and building safety. These facility audits are conducted by accredited and internationally recognized auditing firms and are based on our Ethical Sourcing scope.

All of the ethical sourcing audits we conduct result in a color rating based on the type of issues found. A factory that has been assessed as "red-failed/unauthorized" is one in which our independent audits have found serious violations of our ethical sourcing standards. Red-failed/unauthorized factories are not permitted to produce merchandise for Walmart.

Walmart has committed to increased transparency in our supply chain. Transparency helps all stakeholders to improve worker standards. In keeping with that commitment, listed below are the factories in Bangladesh that are barred from producing product for Walmart. As new reports are made available, the company will publish them on this site.
